ABSTRACT

The purpose of this internship program report is to review the forms of promotional activities that are integrated and in accordance with the effective marketing communication design of Universitas Surabaya. The theories used are marketing communications mix, integrated marketing communications, and developing effectiveness marketing communications.

This internship program report uses the internship program method conducted at the Universitas Surabaya, directorate of Marketing and Public Relations located on the first campus, Jalan Ngagel Jaya Selatan 169, Surabaya. The working pseriod taken is 8 weeks or 200 hours.

Based on observations and analysis during the internship program, it was found that the marketing communications strategy applied was in accordance with the theory of marketing communications mix, but had not been maximally integrated and was not in accordance with the design of effective marketing communications. Some obstacles found need to be fixed in the future so that sales can increase.

Keywords: marketing communications mix, integrated marketing communications, and developing effectiveness marketing communications.
