Abstract

The development of the current era of globalization is so fast that it causes many business fields to appear in the community, one of which is a business in the food and beverage sector. Lately, there are many food businesses such as food court and similar types of businesses. The food business still has many opportunities and potential to expand widely because of the many innovations that exist. The high public interest in food and beverage commodities makes business actors compete to create unique and varied food or services to attract consumers' attention while at the same time giving them a sense of satisfaction. This study aims to analyze the effect of product quality and service quality on visitor satisfaction at Pasar Atom Surabaya. The theory used in this research is product quality, service quality, price, and customer satisfaction. The model was tested empirically using an online questionnaire collected from 173 respondents. Data were analyzed by using Structural Equation Modeling (SEM) technique using AMOS software. The results showed that service quality is the most important variable that has a positive effect on customer satisfaction for visitors to Pasar Atom Surabaya. Two other variables, namely product quality and price have no effect on customer satisfaction of Surabaya Atom Market visitors.
