ABSTRACT

This Study aims to analyze the implementation of the appropriate stages of personal selling and the implementation of RFM (recency, frequency, monetary) at Merak Jaya Beton in Surabaya. Merak Jaya Beton Surabaya has not yet maximized personal selling and has not optimized RFM (recency, frequency, monetary), resulting in the company not achieving its targets. In implementing personal selling strategies, factors such as communication skills, product knowledge, and customer relationship management must be considered. The stages of personal selling are divided into seven steps, which are crucial for the success of personal selling. Considering the competitive nature of the concrete market in Surabaya, businesses must adopt a robust personal selling approach to compete and grow. The optimal implementation of each stage of personal selling is the foundation for the marketing success of Merak Jaya Beton in the challenging concrete market of Surabaya. Additionally, the optimal implementation of RFM (recency, frequency, monetary) will enhance the success of sales personnel.
